About the Gallows Run

The Gallows Run watershed is located in Nockamixon, Springfield and Durham Townships in Northern Bucks County, in Southeastern Pennsylvania. The 8.87 square mile watershed is among one of the most scenic and economically important areas in the region.

The seventeen miles of waterway are classified as Cold Water Fishery (CWF) by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (PADEP). Many of the natural, cultural, historical and recreational amenities within the Gallows Run watershed are identified in a variety of studies, which can be found on our website, and are the focus of resource protection efforts. Maintaining and enhancing HQ water quality through nonpoint source protection efforts is especially important to the citizens of the Gallows Run Watershed as surface and groundwater resources are hydro-geologically connected, and groundwater is presently the only source of drinking water in the community.

In 2003, the Gallows Run Watershed Association secured a PADEP Growing Greener grant to complete the Gallows Run Watershed Restoration and Protection Plan (available on our website). The goal of the project is to complete the necessary research, fieldwork, public outreach, and scientific analysis to create a prioritized list of restoration and protection measures to maintain and improve water quality within the Gallows Run Watershed.
